Abstract

This study aimed to analyze what International Class of Management and Accounting Program (ICMAP) students at Universitas Kristen Satya Wacana' needs, wants and lack were in their English language courses and what English language skills and sub skills were involved. This study used descriptive method by interviewing the participants who were 7 students in International Class of Management and Accounting Program at the Economics and Business faculty. The results of the study showed that students wanted and needed speaking skills to be able to interact with other people from both in Indonesia and other countries. They lacked writing skills and they said that they lack understanding different accents, different pronunciation, and speech rates from the lecturer. They also mentioned that the English courses available didn't provide enough speaking practice.
